Truman Resumes Efforts to End Steel Strike

(By The Associated Press)

Their path cleared by club-wielding policemen, six trolleys and four busses broke through picket lines at Lancaster, Pa., again today as volunteer drivers led by former soldiers attempted to continue service on the strike-beset Conestoga Transportation company lines.

Elsewhere, however, the labor picture appeared brightest in weeks. An easing of several major disputes, including the vast steel strike, appeared imminent.

President Truman cancelled his planned vacation in Florida as government and labor officials strove to bring a quick end to the 19-day-old steel strike.

White House aides told reporters that the labor crisis and the related wage-price policy question were involved in the decision.

Earlier in the day, the president had resumed personal efforts to quickly end the steel strike.

Chester Bowles, OPA chief and a key figure in formulation of wage-price policy, who met with Mr. Truman late in the day yesterday, returned to the White House this morning for further conferences. He left after a half-hour.

U. S. Steel corporation officers who have held secret conferences with C.I.O. President Philip Murray over the past few days were noncommittal.

Althought their names may not be used, some of those close to the secret negotiations said only the question of what date should apply stands between an 18½ cent an hour wage increase agreement between the union and the U. S. Steel corporation—bargaining in effect for the entire industry.

The 18½ cent figure was proposed by Mr. Truman on the eve of the strike. The union accepted it then, but the steel corporation turned it down.

As work stoppages throughout the country left idle a near all-time high of more than 1,460,000, the labor picture also indicated:

An end of the strike of 3500 tugmen in New York which has tied up the city's harbor and sharply reduced fuel and food supplies.

Possible approval by one union of a federal fact finding board's proposal for a 16 cents an hour wage increase for meat industry production workers.

Cancellation of a scheduled two-hour work stoppage in the Metropolitan New York by the Greater New York C.I.O. Council in support of striking Western Union employes.

The C.I.O. United Auto Workers added the Briggs Manufacturing company to the list of firms with which they have settled the wage question and turned back to the slow-moving negotiations aimed at settling their 80-day strike against General Motors.

The new contract signed by Briggs and the union yesterday provides an 18½-cent wage increase for production workers and a 15 per cent raise for salaried employes receiving $500 a month or less.

Man Dies in Blaze That Destroys Hotel in St. Maries

ST. MARIES, Feb. 8. (AP)One man died today in a fire which destroyed the C & M hotel early this morning and damaged or endangered other business buildings.

Coroner Ralph E. Wessa, who recovered the body from the ruins, identified it as that of Carl Lundt, 75, a lumberjack.

Wessa said Dave Ajdukovic, one of the hotel owners, was awakened about 3:30 a. m. by the smoke. He roused the residents of the hotel but was unable to get back into the section where Lundt was living because of the suffocating smoke.

The coroner said Lundt apparently suffocated before the flames broke into his room.

The dozen residents of the hotel escaped without being able to save possessions. One man had only one shoe, an overcoat and a pair of trousers as he fled outside into the freezing weather.

Owners of property affected figured their total loss at about $54,000.

The hotel, valued by Ajdukovic at $40,000, was the greatest loss. Homer Beg, owner of a restaurant in the hotel, estimated his loss at $6000, and the Hemingway Cold Storage plant next to the hotel suffered about $8000 damage.

Fears were expressed during the fire that the flames would also take the cold storage plant as well as another frame building used as headquarters of the St. Joe National Forest and also housing the Eagles lodge.

The volunteer fire department under Chief Joe Mottern, however, was able to bring the blaze under control before it had spread far into the cold storage plant.

The hotel, built in 1907, was one of the landmarks of St. Maries.

The restaurant, destroyed in the fire, was owned by Homer Beg.

Leopold's Fate Depends on Vote

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

BRUSSELS, Feb. 8 (AP)—On Feb- ary 17 Belgium will hold her first neral election since 1939, and the litical complexion of the new par- ment is likely to determine the te of King Leopold, who is fight- doggedly to retain his throne.

Leopold's future is so uncertain t predictions are definitely out of der because, the structure of the w parliament is uncertain.

The 1939 parliament, the last ected, was composed of 73 Catho- , 64 socialists, 33 liberals, 17 emish nationalists, nine commun- , four Rexists and two independ- ts. UNO Council Studies Dispute

LONDON, Feb. 8 (AP)—The United Nations security council interrupted debate on the Indonesian dispute today to study statements of the interested nations, including a Dutch declaration that a "very liberal" settlement of Indonesian independence aspirations was hoped for shortly.

The council will meet tomorrow to try to arrive at a solution satisfactory to the Soviet Ukraine, which charged that British troops in Indonesia were endangering world peace, and at the same time acceptable to Great Britain and the Netherlands.

The Dutch foreign minister told the council last night that it lacked authority to intervene because international peace was not endangered. He added that the Dutch were trying to put their "house in order on a very liberal basis, as I hope everybody will soon be able to see."

He apparently was referring to projected talks between Dr. Hubertus J. Van Mook, acting governor general of the Dutch East Indies, with Indonesian leaders on a proposed settlement which Van Mook recently took back with him from The Hague.

Arnold to Live On Small Farm

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8. (AP)—General Henry H. Arnold said today he is going out to live on a small California farm where "there'll be no planes around."

The retiring chief of the army air forces told a news conferecnce he expected to do some writing but did not plan to witness the atomic bomb test in the Pacific next summer.

Booby Trap Set in Her Apartment

(NEA Telephoto)

Miss Myrna Shade, 35 (left), escaped uninjured when she opened the door of her Huntington Park, Calif., apartment and things went "boom." Now police are holding ex-Marine Ross Hazlett (right) as suspect in rigging a hand grenade as a "booby trap," with the door pulling the firing pin. The couple admitted a stormy lovers' quarrel.

Ickes May Quit As Result of Truman's Stand

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8. (AP)—President Truman's determination to stick to his choice of Edwin C. Pauley as No. 2 boss of the navy spurred congressional speculation today that Secretary Ickes soon might quit.

A number of legislators wondered privately whether Ickes' position might become untenable as the result of Mr. Truman's action in seemingly siding with Pauley against his secretary of the interior in the year's hottest political dispute.

Ickes brushed aside reporters' queries on the point with a terse, "I haven't anything to say."

As an aftermath of Mr. Truman's news conference comments on the Pauley-Ickes dispute, administration lieutenants who declined use of their names said the White House asked them to go down the line to what many think is certain defeat for the Californian's appointment to be undersecretary of the navy.

Some senators said they thought Ickes might regard the reported White House request as a "no-confidence" signal.

Ickes and Pauley are at odds about a conversation between the two in Ickes' office September 4, 1944. Ickes, terming it "the rawest proposition ever made to me," said Pauley suggested $300,000 in democratic campaign contributions could be raised from interested oil men if they could be assured the government wouldn't try to win title to offshore oil lands now claimed by the states.

Pauley, former democratic national treasurer, said Ickes was "mistaken," that he didn't ask for any "contingent contributions."

The president told his news conference yesterday that Ickes might very well be mistaken.

The president said he was backing Pauley. Declaring that Pauley was honest, the president said he had the utmost confidence in him.

GETS ALUMINUM PLANT

SPOKANE, Feb. 8. (AP)—Henry J. Kaiser interests have made a successful bid for the Spokane aluminum plants.

Ginger—Firemen's Mascot—Is Dead

Ginger, perhaps the best known dog in Wallace, is dead.

The tan four-year old part cocker spaniel died this morning.

The dog was the mascot of Wallace firemen, and had been ill several days. Firemen said that when it became known Ginger was ill they received scores of telephone calls from interested persons suggesting various remedies or methods of restoring the animal to health.

Ginger was familiar to everyone in Wallace, riding the fire trucks to the scene of every blaze regardless of the weather or time of day.

A call came in when the animal was sick and when the bell rang Ginger raised its head in recognition, but was too sick to climb onto the truck.

Ginger attracted considerable attention last summer when it was "lost" several days after going with firemen to the scene of the forest fire in Montgomery gulch. But Ginger wasn't lost. Friendly to everyone, it had wandered off with some of the soldiers fighting the blaze, and was returned after a few days' absence.

Wallace firemen declared today "we're a sour bunch of guys around this station. Ginger sure was a good pal and we want to salute a grand old guy."

State Tax Blanks Are Not Mailed

H. E. Rullman, auditor for the state income tax department, reminded today that state income tax return forms are not mailed to individuals, but this does not free a person from responsibility for filing returns.

The forms are available at the courthouse, banks and at auditing agencies, he declared. The deadline is March 15.

Scout Committee Heads Appointed

John Matthews, newly elected chairman of the East Shoshone Boy Scout district, announced committee chairmen at a district meeting last night in the city hall.

Foster Gribble will head the advancement committee; John Lovelace will be in charge of leadership training; Charles Tilford heads the finance committee and Keith Whiting is chairman of the camping committee. K. J. Morrow is vice chairman of the district and Robert C. Johnson is commissioner.

Ralph Kalaher, Panhandle Scout executive, discussed the work of the district committee and plans for the year's activities were developed. Matthews expressed appreciation for efforts of local Scout leaders and declared all indications point to a successful year for Scouting and Cubbing in this area.

Harold Gribble, former Panhandle field executive, has taken a position as assistant Scout executive for Alaska, with headquarters in Anchorage. A successor probably will not be named for several months, Kahaler said, because of the fact such positions are "frozen" for service men returning to Scout work.

There were 60 applicants for the Alaska job. Mrs. Gribble will join him in Anchorage in March or April.

Hess Taken Ill During Trial Today

NUERNBERG, Feb. 8. (AP)—Rudolf Hess, one of the defendants at the war crimes trial, was taken ill during the noon recess today and was removed from the court building to a cell for medical examination.

Hess was stirred to unusual excitement yesterday by the British presentation of the case aaginst him. The British prosecution said Hess flew to England in 1941 with the avowed purpose of overthrowing the Churchill government and paving the way for a German-dictated peace.

CPA Cracks Down on Nylon Hoarders

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8. (AP)—The Civilian Production Administration today cracked down on a number of shirt and nylon hosiery manufacturers who were reported to be hoarding supplies.

In telegrams to unamed firms with "excessive inventories" CPA ordered the producers to halt immediately any further production of these items until their stocks are reduced "to more reasonable levels."

Price Ceilings For New Homes Wins Approval

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8. (AP)—The house banking committee approved today emergency housing legislation providing for price ceilings on new homes and for continuance of government allocation of scarce building materials.

The committee struck from the bill all authority to put price ceiling on 40,000,000 existing dwellings, and removed a section specifically providing for subsidies to spur production of building materials.

The bill creates a new overall office of administrator of housing, and sets up preferences for veterans in obtaining new houses.

Although the subsidy provision was stricken from the bill, Committee Chairman Spence (Dem., Ky.) told reporters the government already has power under another law to use such subsidies.

The nomination of Presidential Advisor George E. Allen to be a director of the Reconstruction Finance corporation won the approval of the senate banking committee.

Administration leaders said they thought the senate would follow suit and confirm the appointment.

A report from President Truman said UNRRA, up to last September 30, had sent war-ravaged countries 2,126,222 long tons of relief supplies with $434,000,000.

Navy Captain A. D. Kramer told Pearl Harbor investigators that in 1941 he twice took highly secret decoded Japanese messages to the late Harry Hopkins. Hopkins, confident of President Roosevelt, was a patient in a hospital here at the time.

George E. Folk, patent adviser to the National Association of Manufacturers, urged the "least possible government interference" with development of atomic power for industrial use. He appeared before the senate atomic committee.

Backers of the fair employment practice bill ran up the white flag, thus opening the way for resumption of business in the senate.

The Case strike control bill arrived at the senate labor committee for a cool reception.

Committee members predicted it might be weeks before they would be ready to recommend any strike legislation, let alone the controversial Case bill.

Food Program Meets Opposition

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8. (AP)—President Truman's bread-for-Europe program touched off rumblings of oppostion in congress today, and it led Alf M. Landon to contend the Roosevelt administration was partly responsible for the food shortage abroad.

First tangible hint of disapproval was the introduction of a bill by Representative Edwin A. Hall (Rep., N. Y.) to ban the export of foodstuffs temporarily until it is determined that American consumers will be assured "the present amount of white bread."

Mr. Truman's plan for cutting American wheat consumption also drew questioning comment from other lawmakers unenthusiastic about the dark bread it will mean on the nation's menu.

Landon, 1936 republican nominee for president, stepped into the incipient debate by attributing the food situation in Germany, at least, to what he termed the "cruel and inhuman" plan formulated by former Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau for treatment of the conquered reich.

In New York, Morgenthau said: "I recommend that Mr. Landon buy a copy of my book and read it. He obviously doesn't know what he is talking about. I think his statement is vicious."

While some farm-state congressmen saw in Mr. Truman's plan the danger of new livestock and poultry shortages, many senate and house members generally were sympathetic with his aim of getting the greatest amount of food possible to starving Europe.

BILL APPROVED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8. (AP)—The house today passed, without a record vote, legislation appropriating $500,000,000 for payment of pending veterans adjustment benefits. President Truman asked congress for the additional fund for the veterans administration only a few days ago.

Labor Secretary Loses Broad Grin

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8 (AP)—Lew Schwellenbach, the smiling, cigar-chewing federal judge from Washington state who answered President Truman's plea for help and became secretary of labor, has lost his broad grin in less than eight months.

The once talkative, affable ex-senator also has lost his "tongue" in the recurring labor crises that have descended upon him since last July 1 when he took office.

He has "clammed up" completely to reporters, who now are forced to look everywhere but to the labor secretary for news of the day-to-day conferences in which he takes part.

As a result, the information they glean, while from other qualified officials, usually must be attributed to anonymous sources, which range from presidential advisors to information directors of industry and labor as well as government agencies.

Schwellenbach's press chief says the White House has ruled that the principals in all the all-important conferences over labor matters must refrain from discussing them. Schwellenbach is adhering rigidly to that "gag"—whether or not imposed by Mr. Truman.

Truman Ignores Yamashita Plea

WASHINGTON,, Feb. 8. (AP)—The war department announced today President Truman has decided to take no action in a clemency plea from Lieutenant General Tomoyuki Yamashita, condemned Japanese leader.

The war department said General Douglas MacArthur had been notified of the president's decision.

President Truman's decision apparently had the effect of putting Yamashita's fate again in MacArthur's hands. The supreme court last Monday upheld the military commission which convicted Yamashita of condoning atrocities in the Philippines.

Yamashita was sentenced to death on the gallows.

MacArthur earlier this week reviewed and affirmed Yamashita's recent conviction by a Manila military tribunal on charges of responsibility for atrocities in the Philippines.

MacArthur found Yamashita false to his duty as a professional soldier and not entitled to die as one, and ordered that Yamashita be "stripped of his uniform, decorations and other appurtenances signifying membership in the military profession.

WHEEL HITS CAR

J. C. Kieffer, Osburn, reported to sheriff's officers damage amounting to $300 was done to his car yesterday when it was hit by the rear dual wheel of a Small Leasing company ore truck on a narrow bridge near the Amy mill on the Pine creek road. Ed George, Woodland Park, was driver of the truck.

BROTHERHOOD WEEK

BOISE, Feb. 8. (AP)—"Brotherhood week" in Idaho starts February 17 by gubernatorial proclamation.

Floods Threaten State Prison Farm

BOISE, Feb. 8. (AP)—Secretary of State Ira H. Masters has asked Governor Arnold Williams to release $5000 from his emergency law enforcement fund to start flood control work at the Eagle island prison farm in Boise.

Masters said Warden Louis E. Clapp had reported the 600-acre farm was being threatened by waters from the Boise river and there was imminent danger of extensive damage when runoff waters start in a few weeks.

MAY DELAY DECISION

LONDON, Feb. 8. (AP)—A highly responsible source said tonight a trend was developing to locate the United Nations' temporary headquarters in San Francisco or London, rather than in New York, and to delay the decision on the permanent site a year or two.

War Prisoner Tells of Long March; Yank Column Fails in Rescue Attempt

Following is the last in a series of four articles written by Robert Bonomi, Wallace, relating his experiences in a German prison camp.

The trek settled down into deadening days of walking silently along, head down, looking only where you were going to put your foot, counting the kilometer markers and the time until the next break. As we reached the place we would stay for the night, the column broke up rapidly, some men going in search of trades, some for firewood and some for a place to sleep.

Campfire "Cliques"

Campfire cliques were growing—six or eight men to a fire—two men going for wood, two for trading, four arranging a place to sleep for all, and then all gathered to see how the "loot" looked.

We were all thieves—we'd steal almost anything that looked like it could be eaten. Large white beets, potatoes, beans, peas, ground cattle food—which turned out to be a darn fine cereal, even uncrushed grain would be parched over a fire until it popped open.

There was a little communism among the fire groups—they'd share among themselves, but none gave away the source of supply until he and his buddy were cared for first, and then everybody could know. The individual came first, always, and then his buddy, and then friends, and then the others. But the individual came first, always. First, fill Johnny No. One's pockets, then tell someone else.

We crossed the islands at the mouth of the Oder estuary, and on into Mecklenberg after having crossed Pomerania. Through the hills of the lakelands in the north and over to Parchim. There we at last settled for a four-day rest. We were back with the Red Cross parcels

RESOLUTION

WHEREAS, the following described property, to-wit: Lots 14 and 15 in Block 3, Town of Calder, located in the county of Shoshone, State of Idaho, was acquired by Shoshone county, Idaho, by a certain deed which was executed and delivered to said county by the tax collector thereof on March 15th, 1944, which said deed is recorded in the office of the county recorder of said county in Book 71 of tax deeds at page 271; and

WHEREAS, in full compliance with the provisions of Section 30-708, I. C. A. said property and all thereof was duly and regularly offered for sale at public auction on the 15th day of May, 1944, but neither all nor any part of said property was sold at such public auction; and

WHEREAS, said property is not necessary for the use of said county and it is deemed advisable and is desired to sell said property pursuant to the provisions of Sections 30-712 and 30-713, I. C. A.;

NOW, THEREFORE, be it resolved by the board of county commissioners of Shoshone county, Idaho, that all of the lots hereinabove described be, and the same hereby are listed for sale, and that the same be sold at private sale, in one parcel, and that the minimum price at which said lots shall be sold be, and it hereby is fixed at the sum of One Hundred dollars ($100.00); and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that this resolution shall be spread upon and shall become a part of the minutes of the proceedings of said board of county commissioners, the substance of this resolution, and the fact of its adoption, to be published as a part of the proceedings of said board, along with the next succeeding publication of the proceedings of said board; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that said lots be thereafter sold in conformity with the provisions of this resolution and in conformity with the provisions of said Section 30-712 and 30-713, I. C. A.

At this time the Venetian Blind Laundry of Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, made a bid for the cleaning of all Venetian Blinds in the Court House and the county auditor was instructed to notify W. C. Droke that the board had agreed that this work be done.

NOTICE OF HEARING OF PETITION FOR DETERMINATION OF HEIRSHIP

In the Probate Court of the County of Shoshone, State of Idaho.

In the Matter of the Estate of John O. Ecker, deceased.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that Grace Ecker has filed in the above entitled court her petition under Chapter 14 of Title 15, Idaho Code Annotated, as amended by Chapter 4 of the 1937 Session Laws of the State of Idaho alleging, among other things:

Legal Advertising

That John O. Ecker died intestate at Spokane, Washington, on February 27, 1943; that at the time of his death he was a resident of the State of Washington and was seized of an undivided community one-half interest in the following described real property, to-wit:

Section Twenty-three (23) in Township Forty-five (45) North of Range Three (3), East of the Boise Meridian, Shoshone County, Idaho.

That more than two years have elapsed since the death of the said John O. Ecker and that no application has been made in the State of Idaho for the appointment of an administrator of said estate, either by the heirs of said deceased or by any person or persons claiming to be creditors.

That the said Grace Ecker is the surviving widow of said deceased and claims to be his sole heir at law and the sole owner of the aforesaid property.

NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that said petition prays for a determination of the time of the death of said John O. Ecker, for a determination of the heirs of said deceased, their degree of kinship and the right of decent of the aforesaid property and a determination of the inheritance and transfer tax due the State of Idaho, if any.

AND NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that the hour of 10 o'clock A. M., on Friday, the 8th day of March, 1946, at the Probate Court in the Shoshone County Courthouse in Wallace, Idaho, have been fixed as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, when and where any and all persons interested in said estate, either creditors or heirs, may appear and show cause, if any they may have, why the prayers of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of January, 1946.

Pocatello to Get First License Plates

BOISE, Feb. 8. (AP)—Residents of he Pocatello area will have first crack at the new Idaho license plates by dint of the routing of the box car carrying the markers from a St. Louis manufacturer.

Boise Riggs, state commissioner of law enforcement, said the car would arrive at Pocatello tomorrow and distribution would begin immediately in the area.

From there the car will travel to Twin Falls, Boise and Moscow, in that order, he said.

Motorists have until March 31 to purchase the single markers, which are black with white letters.

State's Indebtedness Now Only $74,000

BOISE, Feb. 8. (AP)—Idaho's bonded indebtedness has shrunk about $600,000 in one year and now stands at only $74,000, State Treasurer Ruth Moon said today.

In announcing a cash balance of all state funds of $13,190,938 as of January 31, she said the indebtedness was $654,137 a year ago. Total funds at that time were $9,750,862, she added.

About $8949 in government bond interest is accruing to the state from $4,732,043 invested. One year certificates purchased recently at $500,000 are included in the government bond total.

Jaycees Plan Youth Welfare Program

Plans for youth welfare programs to be held in March were discussed at a meeting of the Wallace Junior Chamber of Commerce last night in the Gem cafe.

The entire month of March has been set aside by the U. S. Junior Chamber of Commerce for youth welfare activities, and an extensive program is planned by the local chapter.

It was announced that judges have been selected from the Wallace and Osburn public schools and Our Lady of Lourdes Academy for the Americanism essay contest. Students from the seventh through 12th grades in these schools are eligible to enter. The essays must be under 500 words in length and must be turned in to the Press-Times office by February 18.

11 Yukon Passengers Reported Missing

KETCHIKAN, Alaska, Feb. 8. (AP)—The number of persons rescued from the wreck of the liner Yukon stood at 486 today and the Alaska Steamship company said in Seattle its list of those unaccounted for totaled 11.

At the same time Barney O'Connor of the Northwest Medical Supply company in Seattle said the city's supply of penicillin was exhausted by the demands of the Seward hospital for treatment of survivors.

Penicillian was found invaluable in the treatment of the various exposure ailments suffered by the men, women and children saved from the broken Yukon, O'Connor said.

Army Engineers Plan Snake River Work

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8. (AP)—Army engineers have been given the green light on planning a series of dams on the Columbia and Snake rivers to make the streams navigable from Lewiston, Idaho, to the sea.

With a half-million dollar appropriation to plan the dams, the engineers estimated the total cost will be $58,288,000. General R. A. Wheeler, chief engineer, has testified that water-borne commerce at Lewiston should reach 1,397,000 tons a year from the 13,000 figure at present.

As many as 10 dams from Lewiston to the Columbia's outlet are planned to create a nine-foot channel over the 130 miles of unnavigable waterway.

In Hinduism it is believed that he who dies in debt suffers torment or degradation in the next life.

Nabob Begins Long Crosscut

Another big scale development program got under way recently in the Pine creek district when the Nabob Silver-Lead Mining company began driving a long crosscut to open five known veins at depth. The crosscut will be 6000 feet long and eventually will cut the extension of the Sidney vein into Nabob ground.

Contractors, equipped with modern machinery, plan to make about 500 feet a month on a three-shift basis.

The Nabob already has produced considerable ore from upper levels but this is the first attempt to open the veins at depth. The mine has been equipped with a 300-ton mill, designed by C. Y. Garber, superintendent of the Bunker Hill. Ore will be taken from the upper levels to keep this mill busy while the lower crosscut is being driven.

T. R. Jones, president of the company, declared that the entire program, costing $250,000, has been financed by residents of Kellogg and vicinity.

C. C. Dunkle is vice president and manager and June Olson is secretary. The office is in the Weber bank in Wardner.

Daylight Lease Ends Production

Production has been ended by the Daylight Lease company at the old Interstate-Callahan mine in the Nine Mile district.

Considerable development work was done by the company after it mined out the ore left in the Interstate stopes. A 2000-foot crosscut was driven to the Nipsic vein and a 535-foot raise was driven on the vein before a rich pocket of ore was found. Considerable production was made from this vein.

Gigantic Slides Still Block Roads

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 8. (AP)—The mountainside which has sent a million tons of earth, rocks, trees and debris over the Columbia river highway and Union Pacific tracks appeared to have stopped skidding today.

Railroad officials estimated they would need at least 48 hours to dig through the gigantic slide even under the best of conditions. And the weather man wouldn't promise those.

Lucky Friday Shaft At 1400-Foot Level

The Lucky Friday shaft has been sunk to the 1400-foot level and crews now are cutting a sump, station and skip pockets.

When this work is completed, probably early in March, a crosscut will be driven to the vein. After that drifts will be driven on the vein to explore the Lucky Friday, Lucky Friday Extension and Hunter Creek properties.

ZINC OUTPUT DROPS

Idaho's zinc production in November dropped to 5850 tons, as compared with a monthly average in 1944 of 7614 tons, according to the bureau of mines. October output was 5950 tons.

New Zealand became a self-governing dominion September 26, 1907.

Games Tonight

Priest River at Mullan.
Sandpoint at Coeur d'Alene.

The Miners were stopped cold last night in their effort at a comeback in the second half of the Panhandle conference schedule.

They ran up against a fiery, fast breaking team with an uncanny ability to hit the hoop, and Priest River walked off the floor with a 43-26 victory.

The Spartans made more than 50 per cent of their shots from the floor good—an amazing performance. They shot only 34 times and canned 18 of these efforts, making six out of 13 in the first quarter, five out of nine in the second, one out of three in the third and six out of nine in the fourth.

The Miners, on the other hand, made good only 10 out of 61 tries, seven for 14 in the first quarter, and one for 15, one for 16 and one for 16 in the next three periods.

Except for the first period, when the two teams traded field goals in a whirlwind fashion, the Miners were hopelessly outclassed by a faster team that handled the ball with remarkable ability and used screen plays to perfection.

Krizenesky, veteran little guard, and Phillips, driving forward, were the sparkplugs in the Priest River attack, the former getting 16 points and the latter 10. Johnson, who saw action only part of the time because of a recurrence of a "charley horse," led the Wallace scorers with six points and Larsen made five.

In the preliminary game the Federated church team of Kellogg won the championship in the over 100 pound division in the church league by defeating the Congregational church of Wallace, 20-14.

Boxing 'Beef' Comes High in Garden

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 (AP)—Gus Q. Fan and the Missus will pay tonight the highest price per pound for fistic "beef" in Madison Square Garden's 21-year history.

Beau the Jumping Jack and Johnny (the elevator) Greco, a couple of overgrown lightweights, will tangle in a 10-rounder and, with nothing at stake, they'll draw a gate larger than most heavyweight championships staged in the garden, more than $150,000.

This would be not only the juciest jackpot ever hit in the Garden by two little men, but also the third richest in Garden history, shaded in the past only by the $201,613 heavyweights Jack Delaney and Jim Maloney drew in 1927 and the $189,700 Joe Louis attracted for defending his heavyweight crown against Buddy Baer four years ago.

Figuring that the Jumping Jack will scale in the neighborhood of 143 pounds for his third start since coming out of the army and "The Elevator"—so called for his recent up-and-down performances — will be packing some 145, this figures at about $520 per pound.

Greenberg May not Be Highest Paid Player

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 8 (AP)—President Walter O. Briggs of the Detroit Tigers hinted here yesterday that Outfielder Hank Greenberg may not be baseball's highest salaried player in 1946.

He admitted that Hank's hitting was pretty important in winning last season's series for the Tigers, but added:

"Hank's legs were bad—very bad. I'm sure he hasn't a chance in the outfield anymore. He'll have to play first. If he fails to make it, or fails to sign, then we have Roy Cullenbine who might be right in that lineup."

Tunney Picks Louis To Knock Out Conn

HAVANA, Feb. 8. (AP)—Former Heavyweight Champion Gene Tunney picks Joe Louis to knock out Billy Conn in three rounds when they meet in Yankee stadium in June.

"Louis can kayo Conn in the first or second round if he wants to," Tunney said in an interview. "Joe is a far better all-around fighter than Conn ever will be."

BOOST DUCK POPULATION

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 (AP)—American and Canadian sportsmen have helped, through a conservation program, to increase the North American duck population by 100,000,000 during the last 10 years, John Bracken, Canadian progressive conservation leader, said last night. He spoke at the annual dinner of Ducks, Unlimited.

SKI TOURNAMENT

LEAVENWORTH, Wash., Feb. 8 (AP)—The Leavenworth ski jumping tournament, not held during the war since 1941, will be resumed Sunday with a field of 19 top northwest jumpers headed by Olaf Ulland.

"Murder!" They Cried

By DOROTHY STALEY

Copyright, 1946, NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: Arrogantly beautiful Phillipa Willson, Fletch's wife, announces to the gathered Willson clan that she has sent her small twin sons away so that they will not have to march in the town's Independence Day parade. This is an annual affair, sponsored by the Willson family who own the Willson mills. Phillipa's gesture is one of defiance toward her in-laws. Nana, family governess of many years' standing, overhears old Mr. Willson asking his secretary, Dru Ellis, if she thinks he could buy Phillipa off.

* * *

IV

THERE was a deep silence for a moment and then Dru's voice, sounding thick and heavy, "No, I don't believe you could."

"Well, why not?" Mr. Willson is very fond of Dru Ellis, but when he is worried, he lashes out at her irritably. Dru understands that. She told me once about three years ago, "I'm just the backstop." When I looked puzzled, she laughed and said, "Hasn't anyone ever taken you to a baseball game?" Dru and I went the next Saturday afternoon and when Fletch found we were going, he came along too. They showed me the backstop and made me stand up and stretch after the seventh inning and drink soda and Fletch laughed more that afternoon than he had for a long time.

Now Dru was answering Mr. Willson patiently and slowly as she does when he is irritated, "She likes being in the Willson family."

"Likes being in the family! Didn't you hear her at breakfast? I could pay her to stay away from Fletch and the boys. Ten thousand dollars a year ought to interest her."

Dru said, "She wouldn't take it. She likes being 'young Mrs. Willson.' She likes coming into the mills and being superior to the girls who worked with her there. She likes calling Miss Newhall and saying 'This is Mrs. Willson. Mrs. Fletcher Willson. Will you please get my husband for me'?" Dru sounded exactly like Phillipa when she said that. "Or she likes to call me and say 'Drusilla, my maid is leaving. Will you please put an ad in for another?' There is a lot of satisfaction in that for Phillipa. I suppose because the girls didn't like her when she worked in the office. She was too superior to have any friends among them, and yet she resented their not following her. She was ambitious. She would liked to have had my job. I wish I had let her have it." Dru gave a bitter little laugh.

Mr. Willson fairly shouted, "I wish to God you had, too, and you had married Fletch." I heard the screen door on the French windows slam and I could see Mr. Willson tramping angrily toward the woods path that leads over to the farm.

* * *

MR. WILLSON so rarely loses his temper that I stared after him in amazement, and consequently I was not immediately aware of the sobbing in the other room. When I realized what it was, I folded my mending and went in. Dru had her head down on her typewriter. I just put my hand on her hair and waited and after a while she looked up and whispered brokenly, "I wish to God I had too, Nana."

I didn't know what to say, so I just stroked her hair and after a bit I said, "I didn't know, Dru. I didn't know."

She laughed bitterly, "That makes us even, Nana. I didn't know either—until it was too late. She was what I thought Fletch wanted. And I thought she would make him happy." A sob got mixed up with her words at that point, but she swallowed it. "And that was what I wanted—Fletch to be happy. I didn't know that she didn't care about him—only the name and the money. And now she has both and she isn't even sport enough to work for them." We neither of us said anything for a few minutes and then Dru said, "He never laughs any more. He's heartsick about the boys. She—she's making them everything Fletch—the Willsons wouldn't want." She turned toward me. "I hate her, Nana. I hate her for what she is doing to Fletch. I didn't mind her taking him from me, but I hate her for what she is doing to him and the boys. I could kill her, Nana."

She turned and beat the typewriter with her clenched hands. "I could kill her!"

All I could say was "Hush, child. Hush."

* * *

I LEFT her there in the library and went back to my mending, but when the typewriter stopped clicking again I got up and went to the doorway to see what was wrong. "It's only Fletch," I thought, which only goes to prove how idle thoughts can be. He was saying, "You won't have to go to the mill, Dru. I got the mail." He stopped speaking and cupped his hand under her chin and turned her face up to the light. He said, "Why, Dru, you've been crying." Then I know, before he thought, he added, "Don't cry, darling. I can't stand it if you're unhappy."

I shut my eyes and then opened them quickly. Fletch was still standing with his hand under Dru's small rounded chin; she was sitting quite still looking up at him. I thought, "Jemima, you fool! Why didn't you see this?"

Fletch bent his head and kissed Dru gently on her forehead where the tawny hair swept back from the brow. Then he swung on his heel and left the room.

I thought, "Well! This is certainly the morning for abrupt exits." First one and then another was charging off. But then I realized why Fletch had left so suddenly. Nothing had been said between these two. Nothing would be. They were completely, fully aware of each other, without words between them to tell each other of the wonder of it. And that was how it would be unless some day Phillipa grew tired of the game she was playing.

Cage Officials Will Not Strike

Gene Denny, Kellogg, secretary-treasurer of the Idaho Panhandle Officials 'association ,said this morning members of the association would not go on strike this weekend.

The association is composed of 22 men who officiate at high school basketball and football contests in the Panhandle. At a recent meeting in Coeur d'Alene members had threatened to strike—and not handle any more games in the Panhandle class A basketball conference this season—unless they were recognized by the coaches and hired instead of officials from Washington.

At that time the main dispute seemed to hinge on the fact that John Schnell, Spokane, and Bob Brumblay, Cheney, had been hired to handle the Panhandle tournament in Kellogg starting February 28.

Denny said today, however, that differences were ironed out at a meeting in Kellogg Saturday between coaches and him and R. C. Tyson, St. Maries, president of the officials' group.

Denny said the coaches agreed to recognize the Panhandle association beginning with the football season next fall. In return ,he said, the officials agreed not to strike and not to dispute the hiring of Schnell and Brumblay for the tournament.

Denny said today that Schnell and Brumblay had signed contracts for the tournament before the officials threatened their strike ,and added "we couldn't expect the coaches to forfeit on these contracts and hire new officials."

Youth for Christ Group Planned

A youth for Christ group—a youth movement which sponsors Saturday night religious rallies—was formed by 54 district young people following a banquet in the Davenport hotel in Kellogg last night.

The movement, supporters said, is spreading rapidly and more than 750 Saturday night rallies are being held throughout the country, and the idea has spread to foreign countries. It is inter-denominational.

The Rev. and Mrs. C. A. Cooper, the Rev. John Newman and the Rev. and Mrs. L. G. Baker, representatives of the Spokane Youth for Christ group, explained the purpose of the movement last night, declaring it is a proved remedy for juvenile delinquency. Attendance at such rallies, they said, has varied from 125 in St. Maries to 70,000 at Soldiers' Field in Chicago.

The following were named to an executive committee for a Youth for Christ movement in Shoshone county: The Revs. S. J. Yount, D. S. Bennett, F. C. Jay, E. M. Filbert, R. Russel Eylander, Eric Johnson, Stanley Trefren, and the following laymen, Everett Arvidson, D. M. Tucker, Nels Swan, Lee McClain, Marvin Hopkins. This committee will meet tomorrow evening to plan a rally.

There are already almost 50 sponsoring members of the movement from Kellogg, Wallace, Mullan, Silverton, Osburn and Pinehurst.

The bird and mammal life of North America was once far richer and more varied than in the present geologic area.

Gives Reasons for Use of Silver

According to Humfrey Michell, professor of political economy, McMaster university, Hamilton, Ont., the plea for the universal use of silver as a monetary metal is based on half a dozen arguments, all of which are simple and direct and whose validity has never been denied. These arguments are:

Silver is a "precious" metal, valued and esteemed everywhere. Over great areas of the world it is used as money in preference to gold, and its abandonment as money by the chief commercial nations is of recent date.

Silver readily provides a supplement to gold, a reinforcement to the world's stock of money. There is not enough gold in the world to back its paper currencies and what there is is so unevenly distributed as to make its use almost impossible. Even if the gold stocks now locked up in the United States were to be, redistributed they would be insufficient.

Silver would give "hard money" to nations whose paper currencies are violently depreciated. This would restore confidence and allow them to get back to a sound monetary condition.

Silver would facilitate international payments at a time when the devastated areas are in need of rehabilitation.

Bimetallism is feasible, provided it is international, or "global." Its severest critics have never denied this.

International bimetalism could be easily introduced among the nations once universal consent was obtained.

Weather Key to Food Supply

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8. (AP)—Are Americans going to have plenty to eat next year?

That depends on the weather, and there is at least one disquieting sign after nine consecutive years of good to record harvests.

As a new crop season approaches, this country finds itself more dependent on the uncertainties of wind, rain and hail than ever before in its modern history. Already, dust is swirling again on the fringes of the one-time "dust bowl."

If Americans are to continue to eat well and to help the needy abroad after this year's harvests, the country must replenish it stocks of wheat and corn. Without wheat there can be little bread and without corn there can be little meat, poultry, milk and eggs.

The reason the weather is more important than usual is found in these two facts:

1—In case grain crops are cut short by drought, floods or other causes, there will be no domestic reserves to turn to.

2—There will be no other country to turn to for help. There are no grain surpluses anywhere in the world. The war and southern hemisphere droughts during the past two seasons have wiped out the one-time oversupply.

Ickes Reports on Mineral Output

The value of minerals and mineral products in the United States and Alaska in 1945 amounted to $8,067,000,000, exceeding the $8,000,000,000 mark for the third consecutive year, Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes says in his annual report.

The report said that compared with 1944 total mineral production last year showed a 4.6 per cent decrease, resulting largely from a reduced output of metals.

Ickes declared that "depletion of many of our important minerals is far advanced," and asserted "active measures" are needed to "promote the conservation of our known remaining mineral wealth and the development of new and hitherto untouched reserves."

He called for stockpiling; intensification of exploration for new reserves and stimulation of research to find cheaper and better ways of using resources now considered submarginal.

"I believe that the common defense of the nation requires that we should proceed cautiously in adopting measures that would restrain the prudent use of our resources and in reducing tariffs that now assist in giving us a large measure of self-sufficiency in the highly strategic mineral raw materials," he said.

Idaho's Silver Figures Released

Idaho's silver production in November was greater than in any month since May, according to bureau of mines reports. It amounted to 650,000 ounces in November, largely as the result of increased output at the Sunshine mine.

Following are the Idaho silver production figures for 1945:

January	775,000
February	745,000
March	943,688
April	707,000
May	777,318
June	565,650
July	634,675
August	606,137
September	500,350
October	582,000
November	650,000

The average monthly rate of production in 1944 was 827,635 ounces.

Total domestic production in November was 2,184,583 ounces, as compared with an average monthly production of 2,848,940 ounces in 1944.

Parents Shun School Near Atom Bomb Site

SANTA FE, N. M. (AP)—Closing of the Los Alamos School for Boys has been announced by Director Fermor Spencer Church, who said one reason was association of the name with the Los Alamos, N. M., atomic bomb project.

The school for a time operated near Taos, N. M., after its original site was taken over by the war department for atomic research.

Mrs. James Hunter, Osburn, today was one of the candidates on the program "Queen for a Day" broadcast from Hollywood and heard over station KWAL. She and her daughter, Penny, are visiting relatives in California. They formerly lived at Woodland park.

Silver Mines Rap Green Bill

SPOKANE, Feb. 8. (AP)—Heads of silver mining companies have begun to fight back against the efforts of jewelry manufacturers to obtain government-owned silver at 58 cents under its monetary value, President Wray Farmin of the Northwest Mining association told the weekly mining luncheon at the Spokane hotel yesterday.

The tactics used by the silversmiths in deluging congress with telegrams are now being used to defeat their effort, Farmin reported. Silversmiths called on jewelers all over the United States to support the Green bill. Mining company stockholders are now being asked to write and wire their senators in opposition to the measure.

At the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce mining bureau, Farmin read a typical letter, addressed by R. M. Hardy, president of Sunshine Mining company, to Sunshine shareholders wherever they may be domiciled. Hardy writes in part::

"The statutory coinage or monetary value of silver is $1.29 per ounce . . . The treasury buys newly mined silver for 71.11 cents, or 58 cents per ounce under its monetary value. This difference represents a potential profit to the treasury for coinage purposes of 58 cents per ounce. . . . Production of Sunshine in the last pre-war year was over 7,000,000 ounces. . . .

"We believe any profit that may accrue to the treasury as a result of the purchase of silver from domestic producers at 71.11 cents should benefit all the taxpayers of the nation and should not be used as a subsidy to benefit a small group engaged in manufacture and sale of luxury items . . . It is imperative that S. B. 1508 be defeated."

At a recent meeting in Salt Lake City, Farmin reported, a general agreement was reached that silver producers, facing an attack on their existence from eastern manufacturers, would use the same tactics the manufacturers have found useful in placing their views before members of congress.

Some brokerage houses in Spokane have also addressed their clients, pointing out the damage that would be done to holders of securities in every state if the price of silver should be beaten down again to a submarginal level.

ROBERT LUNDY HOME

Robert Lundy, son of Dr. and Mrs. R. B. Lundy, has returned home after receiving his discharge from the navy February 2, at Bremerton, Wash. He was a radioman third class and served in the South Pacific two years. He was in the service more than three years and has the Asiatic Pacific ribbon, American theater ribbon, Philippine liberation ribbon, four battle stars, good conduct and victory medal. He plans to attend school in the fall.

NOT TUNEFUL, BUT SIGNIFICANT

One account of the army's radar contact with the moon said that a loud speaker connected with the system picked up the echo as a sound—"not a very tuneful sound, but an echo from the moon."

Well, the cry of a newborn child is not a very tuneful sound, either, but it is significant. Likewise the audible echo from the moon was an unbeautiful notice of arrival and of future promise. It was the latest startling reminder that man is pushing back the forces of fraction and gravitation which bind him to earth. It proclaimed a tangible link, through the cold, airless void of cosmic space, with another body of matter in our own small corner of the universe.

This is surely a beginning, not an isolated phenomenon. Some day men will receive an untuneful echo from Mars and the more distant planets. Pulsating waves of electronic energy, indifferent to all obstacles, will speed ever farther to open unimagined horizons to human view. They will present fields for pioneering of a sort which now is thought of as impossibly fantastic, if it can be thought of at all.

It is all wonderful and frightening. But just what do we do about it—we, the overwhelming majority of non-scientific, uncomprehending people? Do we continue to follow the scientists blindly as, with at least partial vision, they open endless doors upon endless mysteries? We we continue to convert their discoveries haphazardly to our material and spiritual benefit or to our destruction? Do we entrust to them a major part in our world governments?

Perhaps there is a hint of the solution in the recent establishment of the United Nations' atomic energy commission. If the world's governments have found it necessary to pool their strength and wisdom thus out of fear, it may come about in time that they will also feel a compulsion to insure a fair and equal use of future discoveries which can contribute to the common good.

The employment of atomic energy plumped the scientist into the midst of politics and of the everyday world. He will find it hard to get out. And that promises to be a good thing for the scientists, the politicians and the public.

There may come a day—and we hope it comes soon—when what goes on in the nation's research laboratories may claim some of the popular attention now reserved for what goes on in the nation's big league baseball parks and in Hollywood's studios.

OBSTACLE These suspicions may turn out to be unfounded, but those who were close to Billie Mitchell from 1920 until his court-martial and conviction in 1926 know how the brass hats conspired to discredit both him and the airplane as a weapon that would revolutionize warfare.

When his declamations on the war-making power of the flying machine forced the Harding administration to permit a demonstration of the airplane against warships, all arrangements were placed in charge of the navy. They erected every obstacle possible against Brigadier General Mitchell, who was then assistant chief of the army air forces.

HISTORY They located the German vessels so far from shore that his squadron burned up almost all its gasoline in flight, and had only a few moments in which to take a careful sight of the target. They forced him to use small-size bombs, although heavier projectiles were available. And they insisted on the test at a time when the weather was unfavorable for the old-fashioned planes then in use.

Billie sank the warships. But naval board of inquiry returned a negative report. And they laughed at the prophet when he pointed out that the planes and bombs he had to use were still in an embryonic stage, and that far more destructive aerial weapons would be invented within a few years.

In view of this history and the planes' performance in World war II, the demand for an unfettered test of the uranium bomb becomes more understandable.

IRRITABLE In recent press conferences and meetings with members of congress, President Truman has begun to show the effect which his presidential office and burdens have exerted upon him.

The simple, kindly and modest Harry has become peevish and irritable. His sarcastic retorts to questioning about labor difficulties, international squabbles and the proposed remodeling of the White House are reminiscent of Rooseveltian days, when F.D.R. tossed off a serious query with a humorous or hostile remark.

His hearers were amazed, for instance, when Mr. Truman dismissed complaints against an addition to the White House with the observation that, if the protestants wanted to chain themselves to the presidential bushes and fences, it would be all right with him. They have been surprised at his nonchalant discussions of the strikes which threaten to prevent and paralyze reconversion. As a friendly senatorial colleague said after a recent talk:

"He is not the Harry Truman we used to know."

But they have no heart for criticism of their former pal, realizing that the presidency of the United States at this moment is a heartbreaking job, especially for a man who did not even want to become vice president in the first instance.—Copyright McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Taylor Wants UNO World Government

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 (AP)—Senators Elbert D. Thomas (Dem., Utah) and Glen T. Taylor (Dem., Idaho) are among signers of a petition to the United Nations general assembly to make the UNO a world federal government, Alan Cranston, chairman of the Dublin conference committee ,reports.

Cranston said the proposal, drawn up last October at Dublin, N. H., by a voluntary, unofficial meeting of 48 interested persons, will be presented to the assembly in London. He said at a news conference adoption of the proposal is "the alternative to atomic war."

The petition asks that the UNO be given military police and inspection forces.

SALT LAKE CITY, Feb. 8. (AP)—Tickets to the Utah-Brigham Young basketball game here tomorrow night are scarcer than nylons.

With all 2200 tickets sold five days before the contest, one fan ran this ad in the Salt Lake Telegram:

"Will exchange four pairs 51-gauge nylons for four tickets to Utah B. Y. U. basketball game."

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 8. (AP)—Edward Hamler, 20-year-old former sailor and a victim of the housing shortage, thought he had found a bargain.

A real estate agent told him he knew of a real buy at $5000 which would be available in about three months.

"I'll take you around to see it," the agent said. Then Hamler learned the address. It was the house of his parents, where he and his wife are visiting.

There was no sale.

War Prisoner Tells of March

again, having received one on the 29th day after we started, and another the day that we passed through Demmin, where a supply was available. We were all rich in food, we thought.

My buddy and I each ate half of a 15-ounce tin of meat, and it made me so sick that I could only drink coffee and eat bread for two days.

Plenty Of Insects

At Parchim, our doctors inspected us for lice and about half of the column was found infested. The delousing powder we were given produced a prickly feeling where applied, but seemed to help some.

We were loaded into boxcars and told that if we were lucky we would arrive at Hammelburg in three days, if not, it would take six or eight. My buddy and I divided our food into portions so much for the first half of the trip and so much for the second. The air forces must have been concentrating on the tactical objectives about that time because we went through undelayed, although we did go through one place where they had just completed laying the new tracks after a raid.

Of course no one had any food left when they arrived at the new camp, and there we found that they had nothing also. There were about 800 officers there, and 400 of us. No Red Cross parcels, no nothing! It was even worse than Italy had been for me. The men here had been mostly captives of the battle of the Bulge and there was no one there to help them organize the camp. The colonel who came in with us was the ranking colonel at this camp, so he began setting things up along the lines of our original camp. Morale picked up quickly.

Here we could hear the fighting on the Rhine—at least there was a continuous rumble to the west. At first we said it was impossible to be the front, but, as it continued day after day and through the night, we finally became convinced. There were no higher hills than the one the camp was on between us and the Rhine, and the wind blows constantly from the west. The rumble and thunder was encouraging, and the morning of March 25 it was heavy enough to make us wonder "what was cooking."

Rumors Fly Thick

The rumors were flying thick. We had no official source of news at all, only rumors—and sometimes the Germans would bring in a communique. But the rumors had the allies across the Rhine and deep into Germany on both sides of us, which, of course, they weren't.

One day the rumor came in that the Americans were fighting in the town of Hammelberg, which we knew to be impossible because it was only a little over two miles and we would be able to hear it. But they were there. A small armored force had been sent in to open our camp and try to rescue us.

I have great respect for the fighting qualities of those men. They came 60 miles to get us. Spent about about 12 hours in continuous combat near the camp and town, and then tried to take a lot of us back with them. I was on the hood of a half-track, but the armored column had been in the area too long, and the Germans had us cut off. We ran into a road-block and the lead tank was knocked out. There were too many prisoners hanging on the outside of the tanks and half-tracks for the column to attempt to break through by weight of armor, and so another route was sought. None had been found at daylight.

Went Back to Camp

I guess there were about 400 of us with the column, all unarmed, and weapons for only about 60 were available. We could stay and fight if we could find a weapon—we could try to walk to our lines (about 60 miles)—or we could go back to camp. Several of us talked it over and joined the hundreds who went back to camp.

About 20 minutes after we had left, the Germans attacked the armored group, and there was a high speed fight for about an hour, with our rescuers being "cleaned up."

All of the men the Germans had rounded up the night before had been started marching for Nurnberg. Those who came back in the morning were placed on a train and three days later arrived in Nurnberg. After three days there, before the walking group had arrived, the entire camp at Nurnberg, consisting of about 8,000 men, started on foot towards Moosberg, near Munich.

Strafed By P-47

About noon of the first day of this march we were strafed and bombed by a P-47—that was a low spot in my life. I can remember thinking that I'd wasted a lot of time living if I had gone through that prison and that first march to be killed by our own planes. We did lose some men killed and wounded. Pretty sad sight—much worse, I thought, than men who'd been killed in battle.

This march was even more disorganized than the first had been. This time they knew where we were going, but they had nothing at all along the way.

The first night we slept in a woods, and the second night it rained half of the time. We were standing around in a town named Neumarkt waiting to get a bowl of soup from the Germans, the first food issued by them in about 56 hours—but we had had a Red Cross parcel each when we started.

It rained the next day, too, and I was sick from canal water and was unable to go with the column the third morning—in fact I didn't give much of a darn about anything that day.

I had lain on the street on top of my bedroll for about an hour or so that morning before a German major came along and told me to go to the central inn of the town where the sick were being left. As I got up to go, a German woman came up to me—and this was in the center of the main square of the town—and gave me a bottle of hot coffee and a slice of bread, saying in German—"for the sick." I've a lot of respect for that woman—aiding the enemy, it could have been called.

Stayed Four Days

We stayed there four days—about 60 of us at first, and then, as the stragglers and escapees began coming in, we grew to nearly 100. Then we moved on—some walking and some by truck. I'd buddied up with another fellow by that time, and he and I were among those on the trucks. After making two jumps with this sick group, we found that the only thing to be in that column was the very sick—so he had a bad back and I had a bad knee which had been aggravated a bit by a fall in a barn one night. That made it—when there was riding to be done, we did it—otherwise we sat.

The farm people were good to us in general, and I stayed a week on one farm where the family had had a boy killed at El Alamein. They didn't seem bitter—and the daughter said that she would like to come to the U. S. to go to school, and then return to Germany.

The German doctor in charge of the sick group was no more anxious to get on to Moosberg than we were, for he, too, knew that when we got there the camp would be crowded, unhealthy, short of rations, and on the road, living in these small towns that hadn't been hit by the full brunt of the war, he would get more to eat. We felt the same way and weren't hurrying at all.

Arrive At Moosberg

At last, however, we did get to Moosberg, and it was all and more than we had suspected. There were 228 men living in a room the same size as the one we had had 74 in at Oflag 64. The entire camp was made up of all nationalities divided into compounds.

We and the British officers and some enlisted men from both allies were in one compound. It was a mess, many of the men were in tents—the latrines were not adequate—there were not enough beds —or bed slats. There was no fuel for cooking—the chow supply was short, and there were about 110,000 prisoners in the whole camp. The camp was no more than a mile square, including all compounds.

I was there just one week before the late General George Patton arrived with a whole army. An Armored division and an infantry division showed up Sunday morning, April 29—just 25 months to the day, and almost the hour, when I had been captured.

The fight at this camp was small in comparison to the one at Hammelburg—one tower guard made the mistake of firing into the camp and someone outside with a 50 caliber made splinters of the whole guard box. Aside from that, there were some shells overhead and a little firing on the outskirts of the camp for about three hours. By 4 that afternoon, General Patton himself, some tanks and jeeps were inside the camp—a couple of guards "tentativeing to escapen had been shotten," and all was quiet.

We did get quite a jolt that dusk, though. Most of us were expecting a German counter-attack—they always had before. Almost everyone was outside, strolling up and down the streets from compound to compound when there was one shot, another, and then a whole string of them. I and my buddies hit the air raid trench and thought about it. There was no more firing. I would guess at least 20,000 men were flat on their faces in that street thinking about what was up. It turned out that it was just a GI demonstrating his carbine.

The trip home was uneventful, almost. From the camp to an airport, by plane to Rheims, train to St. Valery, and boat from Le Havre to the U. S. Arrived in New York at dusk to watch the lights playing on Coney Island and in the harbor—and then the next day past the greenish goddess that is the Statue of Liberty.

Then we knew we were back home in the U. S.

Asks Higher Salaries For State's Teachers

BOISE, Feb. 8. (AP)—Terming it a "must" measure, Asher B. Wilson of Twin Falls has asked the Idaho planning board to recommend increased funds for teachers' salaries to a proposed special session of the legislature.

The board, headed by J. R. Simplot of Caldwell, took the request under advisement. In an unrelated action, the board appointed a former counter intelligence agent as field representative to develop the state's tourist accommodations and set up planning boards in cities and counties.

Perry Nelson, former Power county state senator who recently returned from the war department post, was given the job. Headquarters for his new post will be at Boise.

Miners Suffocate In Utah Shaft

AMERICAN FORK, Utah., Feb. 8. (AP)—With three feet of snow clogging highways in this area, the bodies of three metal miners who suffocated yesterday were being brought here today by sleds and toboggans.

State road crews managed to clear a path to within six miles of the Dutchman Coalition Mines company, scene of the tragedy, 18 miles from here.

Willard Cleghern, mine superintendent, said the men were the victims of poison gas created in the mine by sudden changes in the barometric pressure which released the gas from dock fissures.

WILL START ADULT CLASS

A class for adults will be organized at the Silverton Sunday school by the Rev. Mr. Johnson of Wallace at a meeting at 10:30 a. m. Sunday in Memorial hall.

State May Lose Some Road Funds

BOISE, Feb. 8. (AP)—The State of Idaho stands to lose about $200,000 in road building funds if a suit appealed to the state supreme court by the Union Pacific railroad is decided in favor of the plaintiff.

The railroad contends the one cent portion of the gasoline tax set aside for road building in 1945-46 is refundable to non-highway users as is the other five cents of the total state tax.

The attorney general's office has ruled one cent is non-refundable as the last legislature intended and a district court has upheld the ruling. A decision on the appeal is expected soon.

The amount set aside last year from total gasoline tax collections of $6,620,963 was $905,190. About 10 per cent of the setaside would be turned back to the non-highway users if the suit goes against the state. Estimating the same totals for the present year, the sum lost would be about $200,000.

The total setaside for the two years will be used to match federal funds for road building.

The tax refund law permits non-highway users of gasoline to file claims for five of the six cents tax paid on each gallon.

Refunds were about 7 to 8 per cent of total collections during the mid-thirties but increased use of gasoline powered farm and lumbering machinery has upped the amount to about 10 per cent.

Refunds go to persons using gasoline in tractors, motorboats and stationary engines and those purchasing more than 50 gallons for cleaning purposes.

Seattle Woman to Be Guest Speaker

Members of Adelpha and Benevolent societies of the Congregational church will give a dessert luncheon at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the Fireside room of the church honoring Mrs. Clarence Murdey, Seattle, president of the Congregational Christian Women of Washington and Northern Idaho. Women of the Mullan Congregational church and the Kellogg Federated church will be guests.

Following the luncheon Mrs. Murdey will speak to the group of the organization's program and activities.
